

Unfortunately due to some technical difficulties there is a handful of sessions that did not record at the conference. We recognise this will be a disappointment to many who were looking forward to accessing the sessions in their entirety and apologise for this.

Because of this, rather than charging a flat rate for the sessions as planned, we are making the audio available for download and instead are asking that you pay as you feel!!!

To assist you in deciding on how you may contribute we have put together this document. Here you will find a list all of the sessions, the speakers and descriptions (where available) of the sessions at The Justice Conference 2016 and indicates if they are available for download.

FRIDAY - MAIN SESSIONS
RECORDED	SPEAKER/S	DESCRIPTION
NO	Danielle Strickland Eugene Cho	Main Session One
NO	Mark Sayers Jonathan Cornford Kuki Rokhum	Main Session Two
YES	Tanya Hosch Barbara Deutschmann Amber Hawkes Joel Edwards Joel McKerrow + The Mysterious Few	Main Session Three
FRIDAY - ELECTIVES
YES	Danielle Strickland	Jesus and Justice - Pharisees Anonymous: The Journey into Depth Jesus is the incarnation of God - what love looks like in real life. Come discover keys to the way he postured his life and how it matters to the way we live ours. The invitation is to the deep end of faith. Learn how to walk humbly, act justly and love mercy.
YES	Mike Gore	The Art of Persecution The persecuted church has the ability to change the spiritual temperature of a local church in a heartbeat and as believers in Jesus we are called to follow Him passionately and courageously within our culture. Come and hear stories that will inspire, challenge and ultimately show you beauty can be found within persecution and that living a passionate God focused life is what truly matters when it comes to embracing justice.
NO	Elena Down Stevie Wills Rob Nicholls	What's disability got to do with justice? What does the bible have to say about disability? What is God's vision for people with disabilities? How does that affect us? And what does it have to do with justice? A dynamic and engaging presentation about local and global challenges for the church.
YES	Tim Goh Anthea Smits Amit Khaira	Imagining and creating justice where you are This elective is about you! Justice is not something the professionals do, it's for everybody. This is about you learning to live justice in the community, workplace or culture where God has placed you. Let's imagine together how we might create change that aligns with God's purposes in some of the harder-to-reach parts of our society.

YES	Ken Wytsma Joel McKerrow Anna McGahan	Creativity and Justice: A Conversation on the Artistic Side of Loving Others In this panel discussion, artists Anna McGahan and Joel McKerrow along with author Ken Wytsma take a deep look at the intersection of art and justice and explore how creativity functions in our calling as agents of reconciliation. Come join us as we look at the role of imagination, not only in the pursuit of God, but in the transformation of society.
YES	Andrew Gardener Christie Buckingham	Leading your church in Justice In this session for pastors and church leaders we will have a conversation around ways to lead your church effectively towards a heart for justice. From the highs and lows of leading a church through a shift in approach to ministry, Christie and Andrew will share from personal experience on the good, bad and ugly of justice work. What are some of the practical ways to equip your people to 'do justice'? What is the main role of a lead pastor within their congregation in the area of justice? How do you manage the tension between financially developing justice work while not putting your church in financial risk? How do you personally manage the disappointments when justice is not evident?
YES	Facilitated by Common Grace	People Displaced + Seeking Safety A panel facilitated by Common Grace, exploring the global challenge of people who are displaced from their homelands and are forced to seek asylum in other countries, with our panelists sharing practical ways that Christians are living out Jesus' instruction to love our neighbours at a global, national and local level.
NO	Jo Knight	What is a "Restorative Economy"? Tired of being part of the problem and caught in an economic system of violence and greed? How can we pursue God's priorities for an economy that is green and fair; that lifts people out of poverty without destroying our planet? Come and be introduced to the emerging movement for a "Restorative Economy" that is a call to the Christian community to take the lead in prophetic advocacy and action for the long-term good of humanity and the earth itself.

SATURDAY - MAIN SESSIONS

RECORDED	SPEAKER/S	DESCRIPTION
YES	Stevie Wills Kuki Rokhum John Beckett Joel Edwards	Main Session Four
YES	Ken Wytsma Christie Buckingham Joel McKerrow Anna McGahan Evert-Jan Ouweneel	Main Session Five
YES	Scott Sanders Amit Khaira Anna McGahan Eugene Cho	Main Session Six

SATURDAY - ELECTIVES

YES	Evert-Jan Ouweneel	Desecularising Development The world is desecularising and so is development. There is a growing recognition in humanitarian circles that lasting positive change in societies requires close collaboration with faith communities in most of the world. In this Elective, some video examples and lessons learned will be shared. The focus will be on both Christian and Muslim communities.
YES	Rebecca Nhep	Protecting Children's Right to a Family: Considering child rights in development and short-term missions This elective will explore the issues surrounding engaging with orphanages through international development and volunteering. By applying a child rights lens, we will explore the complex issue of residential care, orphanage volunteering and what best practice in alternative care and short-term missions looks like in support of vulnerable children.

RECORDED	SPEAKER/S	DESCRIPTION
NO	Mick Pope Claire Dawson Kuki Rokhum	A Just Climate Our generation has a special choice no other generation will get — if we take better care of creation people will be able to live well everywhere, but if we don't, we'll push even more people into poverty. Will the church give a lead? In our daily lives, in our prayers, in speaking out to people in power, we can work towards renewing the way the world works, renewing creation, renewing the hope of each person God made to live a life free from want, a life with enough.
YES	Facilitated by Common Grace (inc. Andrea Tokaji)	Facing the horror of Human Trafficking A panel of experts, facilitated by Common Grace, taking a good hard look at the reality of human trafficking facing us as a global community, acknowledging the scale of the challenge and exploring several Christian responses that are proving effective at a global, national and local level.
YES	John Lamerton	Urbanisation, is it really a justice issue? Globally there are now more people living in urban centres than rural communities, and the numbers of people moving into cities each day is rapidly growing. Christians need to rethink how this shift might influence our approaches to mission and caring for the needs of an increasingly urban world.
NO	Melinda Tankard Reist	Life in the Sex Industry: violence, trauma, dehumanisation - how should we respond? Is prostitution just a job like any other? Do women freely choose to enter the industry? What is it like when they do? And what would help them to leave? These are some of the questions explored by Melinda Tankard Reist and co-editor Caroline Norma of the newly released groundbreaking collection of survivor testimonies, Prostitution Narratives: Stories of Survival in the Sex Trade (Spinifex Press). A collection of 20 first person accounts, Prostitution Narratives refutes the lies and debunks the myths spread by the sex industry through the lived experience of women who have survived it. The book documents the reality of prostitution by describing the cost to the lives of women and girls. It calls for funding for desperately needed 'exit' programs and the adoption of the Nordic Model (recently legislated in France) which sees prostitution as beyond the dignity of women, penalises the buyer, and provides remedies and reparations to the victims. Melinda Tankard Reist will make a return appearance at The Justice Conference 2016 to talk about Prostitution Narratives and to explore with us how we should respond. With her will be two book contributors — Charlotte, a young Queensland woman and Melbourne survivor Amy, who will share their stories. Trigger Warning: This session is likely to contain content that relates to sexual abuse and sexual exploitation.
YES	Joel Edwards	Justice is just right When party politics trap justice it loses its prophetic edge. It's as ludicrous as trapping God in a magician's box. God is neither a conservative mascot or a Marxist activist. He is neither left or right. He is just right. Theologically, you can't have justification without justice.
YES	Clyde + Rose Rigney	Shared history to shared future We have been asking questions about the history that tells our Ngarrindjeri story and realise that it is so different to many other stories. Come and share in our journey and see if the information helps us all to understand our historical story that can make our futures together very different.
NO	Ben Thurley	Voices for Justice: the power of Christians organising together for social and political change The power of our voices – why and how Christians should campaign together for change. How we become captured by a God-inspired vision of the world as it should be. Biblical and practical tools for being and building a powerful movement of Christians speaking for a just, peaceful and sustainable world.
